GRAYSON REFUSES TO TALK OF WILSON'S HEALTH

SMITH CLAIMS HE BEAT MAYNARD'S TIME IN AIR RACE

EAST BOUND FLYER, THIRD TO REACH MINEOLA, MAKES TRIP IN 24 HOURS, 30 MINUTES.

DRAYTON IN WEST

Forty Army Aviators Resume Flight In Transcontinental Derby.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Mineola, Oct. 13.—Capt. Lowell M. Smith, third westbound aviator to complete the trans-continental flight, arrived here at 10:50:42.

According to the record in Captain Smith's log-book, he has beaten Lieutenant Maynard in the trans-continental race. Captain Smith's figures show that he flew from San Francisco to Mineola in 24 hours, 30 minutes flying time as against Lieutenant Maynard's 24 hours, 50 minutes and 48 1-2 seconds from Mineola to San Francisco. Captain Smith's claim to be victor will have to be officially verified before a decision is made.

Second Lieut. H. E. Queens, the fourth east-bound aviator to arrive here, landed at Roosevelt field at 11:38 o'clock this afternoon. Lieut. Queens, who flew a Deltaviland four machine, carried Lieut. L. E. Bishop as a passenger.

Sacramento, Calif., Oct. 13.—Capt. C. H. Drayton, west-bound, arrived from Reno at Mather field, 14 miles from Sacramento, at 8:54 this morning.

After conferring over the telephone with officials of the air service in San Francisco, the control officer at Mather field decided to hold Captain Drayton until informed that a fog at San Francisco had lifted.

Forty Flyers Off Again

Mineola, Oct. 13.—Refreshed by an enforced over-Sunday rest, 40 of the 62 original starters in the army air service trans-continental race lined up early today at controls all the way from Mineola to San Francisco, to take up the trail completed Saturday by Lieut. Belvin W. Maynard, Major Carl Spatz, and Lieut. E. C. Kiel, the three race leaders.

Major Spatz and Lieutenant Kiel, the eastbound flyers who landed here Saturday within 20 seconds of each other after a nip and tuck race across the continent which Major Spatz is reported unofficially to have won by the remarkably narrow margin of 31 seconds in a 2,701 mile race, were working on their weather-beaten planes today in an effort to get them ready for the return trip within the 96 hour maximum time allowed by the air service between arrival at a terminal control and departure on the return flight. It was said that their machines would require elaborate overhauling and the fitting of new wings, the old wings having been made unsafe by the buffeting of wind, rain and snow which they encountered on the flight east.

Reports received here from San Francisco were to the effect that Lieutenant Maynard, the "flying parson" who finished first, would start the return flight Tuesday. Major Spatz and Lieutenant Kiel did not believe they could be ready to start west before Wednesday.

FRANCE IS PLACED ON PEACE BASIS BY OFFICIAL DECREES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris, Oct. 13—Decrees published in the Journal officiel this morning place the interior affairs of France on a peace basis, ending the state of siege, lifting the censorship and transferring jurisdiction over police affairs from the army to prefectures.

To end the state of war with Germany it is still necessary to deposit in the foreign office a text of the treaty signed by President Poincare, which will be filed with the ratification document signed by President Ebert of Germany. To this will be added the ratification documents signed by the kings of England and Italy. A document will then be drawn up setting forth the fact of the deposit of the document and this will be followed by the publication of the text of the treaty in the journal officiel. At that time the treaty will go into effect.

The exchange of ratifications will occur at the foreign office without ceromony in the presence of ambassadors of England and Italy, and Kurt Von Lersner, Germany's representative. Stephen Pichon, foreign minister, will represent France. The British and Italian ratifications have not as yet been received but are expected at any moment.

Two sheets will be added to the treaty when it is filed, the first setting forth that representatives of the powers have taken cognizance of the treaty, and the second bearing the signatures and seals of the representatives. The document containing the minutes of the meeting will be filed with the treaty.

$15,000 DOG-BITE SUIT IS DISMISSED WITHOUT TESTIMONY

One of the most unique dog-bite cases in the annals of Rock county circuit court has been brought to a sudden close with the filing of a stipulation dismissing the action. Although the suit was brought to recover damages of $15,000 and grounds seemed to justify it, the complaint suddenly dwindled to nothing when the defendants showed a determination to fight the case, and the action was dismissed by mutual consent of both parties without ever being brought to trial.

The case in question was filed in circuit court two years ago by Paul Bluhm and wife against Mr. and Mrs. Louis Meissner and their daughter, Anna. Mrs. Bluhm, in the complaint filed by her attorney, Charles A. Enslow, alleged that she was passing the Meissner house at 1227 South Cherry street on the evening of August 13, 1917, when Anna Meissner suddenly jumped up from the porch of her home and ran to open the front gate; that she called to a certain dog and "did urge, direct and command dog to go through said gate to attack the plaintiff."

She complained that Anna came through the gate with the dog, clapped her hands, and with cries of "Sick her! Sick her!" incited the canine to attack Mrs. Bluhm, who further complained that Anna's mother joined her and the dog to help in the attack. Mrs. Bluhm charged that she was so frightened at the incident that she became insane for a long period of time, and later lost the use of one limb, and had to have her left eye amputated. She demanded judgment for $10,000 while her husband demanded an additional $5,000 for medical attendance.

The case attracted considerable interest at the time it was commenced. After being in court nearly two years it was finally dismissed with the stipulation that each party was to pay its own costs. O. A. Oestreich was attorney for the defendant.

GROCERS PROTEST 11 CENTS SUGAR PRICE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Oshkosh, Oct. 13—Some of the grocers of this city declare that with the wholesale price of sugar where it is at present, to retail it at a fixed price of 11 cents a pound would mean an actual loss to them. They declare if they are forced to sell at that figure they will hang up a sign "no sugar for sale here."

It is held by local grocers that the government has not set any fixed retail price of 11 cents a pound, its regulation extending only to the requirement that the selling price shall be at a reasonable profit. It is held that the government should start farther back that the retailer if it is going to regulate the sugar prices. Grocers here have records to show that their sugar costs them nearly 12 cents a pound when ready for retail selling in small lots.

A recent meeting of the retail grocers the situation discussed and the fact brought out that inability of local grocers to supply customers with enough for their needs is turning many people to the mail order houses, thus putting a serious crimp in home trade.

The Boy scouts have also helped as much as possible after their school hours, in meeting trains and in directing the visitors to their destinations. Many people owning cars and not belonging to the church have been using them for this service. The utmost spirit of cooperation has existed in the other church denominations in making this affair a success. The people have opened their houses to the guests, taking them in blocks of 20 to 40 and finding accommodations for them among their own church people. Mrs. W. E. Clinton, Mrs. A. S. Krotz, and J. C. Hanchett have had the task of receiving the applications for lodging and making assignment of guests. They had placed about 300 guests this morning.

EUREKA

I've found a house!
I hate the place and all pertaining to it—
(I can't think how the builders dared to do it!)
I hate the windows, that refuse to shut;
I hate the floors, I hate the kitchen—but
I've found a house!
I hate the 'busses screeching past the door;
I hate the trains (I'm deafened with their roar);
I hate the boxes on my window sill;
I hate the scrubby, grubby garden—still
I've found a house!
I hate the paper that adorns the hall
(I hate to see it peeling off the wall);
I hate the staircase (steep instead of low),
I hate the basement; I'm unhappy though
I've found a house!
I loathe the landlord and his load of lies—
(I hope he'll go to Hades when he dies!)
I hate the neighborhood—in front, behind,
The views give me the blues. But never mind—
I've found a house!

ELECTRIC COMPANY SOLD TO SAMSON, SAYS LOCAL RUMOR

BEGINNING OF PUSH ON PETROGRAD IS CHECKED AFTER RIGA

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Oct. 13.—The capture of Yamburg marks the beginning of the push by troops of the Russian northwestern army under General Yudenitch toward Petrograd, according to a dispatch to the Daily Mail filed Saturday at Libau. General Glazenapp commanded the captors of the place. He is reported to have taken four complete bolsheviki regiments, 2,000 other soviet troops, and the entire staff of the tenth bolsheviki division.

As far as latest reports disclose the situation, Lettish troops still hold the eastern part of Riga. All reports concur in stating that Col. Avaloff-Bermondt's troops have occupied Thorenberg, the western part of the city, and are bombarding positions east of the river.

The statements attributed to General Vladimiroff imply the belief that Col. Avaloff-Bermondt's attack on Riga was a part of a scheme to on Riga was a part of a scheme to advance on Petrograd, which is regarded to have been checked by Gen. Yudnitch's push northward.

Lette Invited to Conference.

Copenhagen, Oct. 13.—Claiming to have checked the attack of Lettish troops who landed at Libau from British vessels, Col. Avaloff-Bermondt, commander of the forces of the "Russian general government," has since taking Riga, invited the Letts and Esthonians to confer with him at Mitau to "prevent further bloodshed and to bring about joint action against the bolsheviki."

There has been no indication of an advance east of Riga by the German-Russian forces, and it seems probable the taking of the city will terminate the offensive for the time being.

Esthonians to Join Letts.

Paris, Oct. 13.—Important troop movements are occurring in the direction of Riga, Esthonian troops are said to have left Segewold for Riga, 30 miles distant, and Lettish reinforcements and other Esthonian detachments are reported to be entroute to Libau to join Lettish forces which have been landed there from British vessels.

The possibility of choosing Washington, D. C. has been discussed.

Bishops and clerical and lay delegates to the convention are sitting in joint session today to consider plans for the nation-wide campaign to finance church work extension and maintenance the next three years, for which at least $55,000,000 will be needed. M. Clemenceau said such a debate would be useless and that he would enter into no explanations as to the future policy of the cabinet, which would necessarily go out of office with him.

Brest is Crippled by Arsenal Strike

DETAILS OF TRANSACTION ARE WITHHELD FOR PRESENT.

CRAIG DIRECTOR

Power For Big Industrial Concern Will Come From Kilbourn Dam, Is Belief.

A deal in which the local electric light company is understood to have passed into other hands has been consummated, according to information obtained this morning. Details of the transaction were not obtainable because J. A. Craig, president of the Samson Tractor company, is out of the city and others who have the information were not inclined to talk about the matter.

One rumor is that the Samson Tractor company has taken over the electric company. This is borne out by the fact that J. A. Craig has been added to the board of directors. Another is that the power for the Samson plant will be furnished by the companies controlled by the Wisconsin River Power company and which get their current from the Kilbourn dam. Under this arrangement power for the tractor plant will come through the local electric plant, it is said.

Superintendent Korst of the electric company, this morning refused to discuss the deal and referred a reporter to a local attorney. He gave little information.

It is understood that Marshall E. Sampson, Chicago, will be president of the new company and in addition to Mr. Craig, John T. Smith, Wisconsin Power company, will act as a director.

CONDITION REMAINS UNCHANGED SAYS DOCTOR'S BULLETIN

RUMORS OF SERIOUSNESS OF PRESIDENT'S ILLNESS NOT DENIED.

MIND IS CLEAR

Ability Of Executive To Attend To Affairs Of State Is Discussed.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Oct. 13.—Dr. Grayson said he and the other physicians attending the president would continue to stand on their bulletins and would not deny rumors as to the president's condition or enter into any discussions concerning them.

Dr. Grayson said that while he would insist that the president remain quiet and not participate in affairs of state, some occasion might arise where he would have to give his consent to the president taking executive action. He added that the president's mind was clear and that he was perfectly capable of forming instant judgment on any matter that might come up.

President Wilson's condition remains much the same as for the past several days, and his organs are functioning normally, said a bulletin issued at 12:15 today by his physicians.

Ability to Work Discussed.

A discussion of whether President Wilson is well enough properly to perform the duties of the presidency developed at an executive session of the senate foreign relations committee today, when action was sought on a resolution requesting certain information regarding Chinese-Japanese relations.

A vote on the resolution and several other measures relating to foreign affairs was postponed indefinitely on the objection of Senator Williams, who was said to have argued that in his present state of health the president should not be called upon.

The resolution had been introduced by Senator Poindexter, and would call upon the president for a copy of a dispatch said to have been sent to the state department last January by the American minister at Peking, going into Japanese-Chinese relations.

Senator Williams was said to have made a vigorous protest against sending such a request to the White House in the present circumstances.

The usual weekly meeting of the president's cabinet will be held at the White House tomorrow, with Secretary Lansing, of the state department, presiding.

Published Reports Resented.

White House officials resent publication of reports that the president's conditions was such that he could not attend his official duties, should matters of importance arise.

"The president could sign bills today if they were placed before him, but we are not putting them before him," one official said.

Those close to the president said they had every confidence that he would regain his health, although he must continue to obey his physician's orders to remain in bed for "an extensive period."

There is no reason why legislation now ready for the president's action should not be placed before him, Secretary Tumulty said, but decision as to this rests with Rear Admiral Grayson, his personal physician. Bills now ready for executive action include the prohibition enforcement measure and the amendments to the food control act punishing profiteering and hoarding.

Honest Day's Work Is Labor Cure Says Maxcy

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Oshkosh, Oct. 13.—If everybody would do an honest day's work for six months and the strikes were cut out, the United States would in that period of time get back to normal production. That was the statement today of W. G. Maxcy, local business man and waterworks owner, on his return from an automobile trip of 3,500 miles through the east. He said thinking men in the east were of the belief that the league of nations would not do, unless reservations were made to protect the United States.

Mr. Maxcy said loading on the job and strikes were holding back American progress and only a situation bordering on a panic would end the unrest.

LARGEST CORN CROP IN STATE RECORD BEING HARVESTED

The largest corn crop in Wisconsin's history is being harvested this fall, according to the October report of Joseph A. Becker of the Wisconsin cooperative crop reporting service. Based on October 1 conditions, the crop will equal 77,673,000 bushels, as compared to 74,347,000 forecasted on September 1, a production of 69,538,000 bushels in 1918, and a 5-year average (1914-1918) of 56,110,000 bushels. The largest previous production was the 69,862,000 bushel crop of 1914. Condition of the crop on October 1 was 97 percent of normal, compared with 95 on September 1 and a 10-year average of 78.

Moderate weather, with much sunshine, and entire absence of killing frost during the first three weeks of September allowed the crop to mature completely. Silo filling went on without interruption and is practically completed. Corn for grain is practically all in shock and much of it is already husked.

For the United States, the production of corn, based on October 1 condition, is estimated to be 2,901 million bushels compared with 2,858 million forecasted on September 1, 2,583 produced in 1918 and a 5-year average of 2,777 million bushels.

A BUS RIDE.

One of the most inspiring things to do in this world is to ride on top of a Fifth avenue bus on a spring day. A bus, to one crossing the street, is a terrifying object as it lumbers and rumbles along, looking too big and clumsy to be restrained by the hand of man; but riding atop it you realize that it has a jolly soul. When it lurches at pedestrians it is just playing.

You start at Washington square and get a front seat if you can. The trees of the square are filmed with a faint, shrill green (at least so a Washington square artist would say).

The children are roller-skating or playing hop-skotch below and a hurdy-gurdy is jangling. With a flourish the bus turns and away it goes under Washington arch. Fifth avenue stretches before it, a street of singing beauty. Stately old houses near at hand, tall white buildings gleaming against the sky beyond, flags fluttering, people like shifting blotches of color against the asphalt, all seem arranged for you to see as you come bowling along. If those in gorgeous limousines could know with what pity they are gazed down upon! They are only a part of the picture, for all their airs. The top of the bus alone can furnish grandstand seats for the panorama.

It turns at Fifty-seventh street, past studio buildings and shops bright with flowers and hats, and comes at last to Riverside drive. Now it is hard to choose which way to look. The driver crinkles into a million waves like chipped silver, strange ships ride at anchor, the park is bursting into bloom. But on the other side are the homes of the affluent, all getting their windows washed and their brass rails polished.

Part of the game of riding on a bus is choosing which house you will live in. You feel suddenly that you can have any one you want, such a sense of power comes with your lofty position. And so you decide quite grandly that you will refrain from choosing and thus in a way you possess them all.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

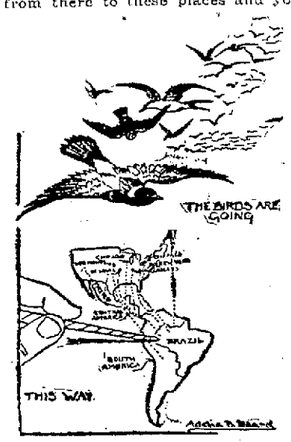

The Birds On Your Map.

By Adelia Belle Beard.

Mobilization begins early. July often sees the BOBOLINK on his road to Brazil and in August other little citizens of the air gather in more or less noisy companies and regiments for their annual evacuation of the north. But it is later that the great rush to get under way is made; later still, sometimes into December, loiterers are seen winging their flight to lands of sunshine and plenty.

BLACKBIRDS and SWALLOWS gather for the onward march in Augusts, the Blackbirds headed for the southern part of the United States, the swallows for the extreme southern states and South America. Find the location of your town or city on the map, run your pen handle down from there to these places and you will be on the trail of the birds.

September is the month when WARBLERS—including the little Black and White Creeper and the beautiful orange-breasted Blackburnian Warbler—assemble and pass over our heads at night on their long trip to Central and South America. In October the WHIP-POOR-WILL waves his wing to us and is off to his winter haunts somewhere south of the United States. In October and November birds of the SPARROW FAMILY (not the English Sparrows) begin their journey. Look for them now. When you see a dusky flock of small birds rise from a field and settle again in low trees or shrubbery, you may be pretty sure they are Sparrows making ready for flight, many to the Gulf states, some to Mexico.

Central America is often chosen as a winter resort by the ORIOLE of the swinging nest and his brother the ORCHARD ORIOLE. The valiant KINGBIRD favors both Central and South America.

The chief highways of the birds follow coastlines, mountain chains, and river valleys. Various stops are made, but the plucky little airmen do not hesitate long to take long ocean voyages when necessary. The GOLDEN PLOVER, flying from Nova Scotia to South America, travels two thousand four hundred miles over the sea.

Big Facts and Big Berries.

By Arthur Deimers,
Francis W. Parker School.

"Remember, my son, that you cannot remember everything."

Does that seem useless advice? I know it isn't. Many boys and girls go at a lesson as they would put dominoes into a box—everything in the lesson is just as big and important as every other thing. This is never so.

There are always big facts and little facts, just as there are big berries and small ones on any bush. Get the big berries first; if the basket isn't full, pick the others afterward.

But how can you tell important facts from unimportant ones? It takes practice to do that perfectly, but if you keep at it the skill comes. When you attack a lesson, always ask yourself this question, and always be sure you get an answer: What is the lesson about? It seems simple, but you probably have no idea how many boys and girls can't tell, even after they have studied faithfully. They know a lot of things about the lesson, but they don't really know the lesson. Get a definite answer to your question.

Nearly always the lesson is about Somebody or Something. When you have discovered this, your study consists in putting together all the facts that seem necessary, or at least important, to understand and explain that Person or Thing. Do not spend your time on minor facts, that may be interesting enough, but are not essential to a clear understanding of the subject.

For instance, the history lesson is about the French and Indian War. Now what do we want to know about any war? What were the causes, the big events, the results; that's all. When you know clearly and surely the answer to these three questions, you know your lesson. Take the questions one by one, and when you know the answer, you may know that you know the lesson.

Voice of the People

To the Editor:

Permit me to present the view from the farmer's standpoint of life in regard to the article signed by a M. D.

If he had stayed on the farm in place of being retired so long ago they would have forgotten what work was like. His hands would have been so calloused from years of toil from the morning dawn through the noonday heat till the setting sun or shoveling snow to do the daily chores that in place of considering it a hardship it would have become second nature to him. Shoveling snow and wading through snowbanks is part of every farmer's daily routine in stormy winter weather.

Does it even occur to our finely dressed and groomed city brothers when they are shouting about the farmers being responsible for high prices and high cost of living. All prices paid for farm stock and products are set by men in the cities: in swivel chairs and at roller top desks. Farmers always have to take what they are offered for their products. Pay prices and wages asked of them. Can the farmer go to the phone and give his daily order and have it delivered at his door?

He has to go to the nearest city and haul everything himself over just such roads as the M. D. may have to travel a few times through the crisp winter weather; from a pound of tea to a ton of coal.

Pay dollar for dollar with his city brother who has all his goods delivered at his door.

Does the farmer work eight hours a day? Receive time and a half for overtime and double pay for Sunday? His chores must be done on Sunday as well as any other day. Milk is not worth any more then than on any other day.

If the expenses are so high on a M. D. car what is the expense on the farmers car? A farmer has to keep and feed his horses 365 days in every year whether he uses them every day or not. What are hay and oats worth today. Horses can't live on post hay any more in the country than in a livery even if a livery is out of the question. Signed:

"A Voice from the Farmer."

Billiard Shark Stumbles on Cure for 'Pill' Smoking

Pierre Maupome, one of the greatest three cushion billard players in the world, and one of the leading contestants in the Interstate Billiard league which soon inaugurates its season, accidentally ran across a partial cure for the cigarette smoking habit, and he may adopt it to completely rid himself of the desire to smoke the white sticks.

Some months ago Maupome was engaged in a match in Cleveland. There was a rule against cigarette smoking, because of the presence of a bevy of fair fans. When Maupome learned of the ruling against cigarettes he was in a quandury. He had always been accustomed to "drawing" on a cigarette, which seemed to steady his nerves in a crucial situation.

He solved the problem by ordering a large pitcher of drinking water. When the match got under way and Maupome felt the return of the craving for a "pill" he turned to the pitcher containing nature's beverage, and drank heartily. From the first it seemed to take effect.

As the game progresses, "Maup" would take occasional sips of the water. But he kept away from the cigarettes. And he also kept a couple of boys busy carrying water. He went through the match without a cigarette, and at the conclusion of play decided to continue his fast from cigarettes for an hour or two longer.

The effectiveness of the substitution surprised Maupome more than any of his friends. He declared he did not realize that smoking was so much a habit, and that in the future he would discard the cigarette for clean, wholesome water. Maupome, had previous to this time, been in the habit of smoking approximately 100 cigarettes per day. He immediately cut this number to 50 and says he believes it will be possible for him to reduce it to 25 before January 1st. He will participate in the Interstate League for three cushion players this season and he is expecting the league to adopt a rule against the use of cigarettes during a match. He is not dreading such action now, but on the contrary is hoping for it.

BLIND STUPIDITY?

The Milwaukee Journal is much worked up because all newspapers of the state do not agree that Wilson's insistent demands that the peace treaty be accepted without reservations are right. The Journal assumes that any one criticising the president is wrong and that in doing so abusive personalities are resorted to. The Journal commenting editorial says:

"Abusive personalities usually show a lack of honest arguments. Never has a president been attacked in this way as Woodrow Wilson has. No real man needs to be told that such things at this time are revolting. Yet so in love with the personal abuse habit have two or three Wisconsin editors become that they allow themselves to print at this time stuff which, if merely reprinted without comment, would damn them in the eyes of decent men and women."

Then follows an excerpt from an editorial recently appearing in the Gazette. It reads: "Knowing how completely the president wants to turn the United States away from the paths mapped out by George Washington who was not only against entangling alliances with foreign nations, but also against third terms." The Journal then says: "A living man can defend himself, but Washington must suffer representation as a man who would have blocked freedom and peace."

The Journal has blindly followed Wilson's headlong lead in attempting to force a peace treaty upon America which is not free from objectionable features. It has, with unreasoning insistence, upheld the president's attitude that he alone is responsible for the world's future and that his ideas must be carried out regardless of the desires of Americans to protect American interests. Considering that the Journal has so thoroughly followed its course, it is natural to believe that it cannot recognize the right of other editors to disagree with it and President Wilson.

Wisconsin newspapers are not the only ones in the United States that have reserved the right to stand up for American institutions, and object to this country entangling itself with European affairs to the disadvantage of our citizens. Hundreds of other newspapers throughout the nation do not agree with Mr. Wilson and have not hesitated to say so in no uncertain terms. George Washington's ideas of freedom and peace will do very well for most of our people. Most of them remember that he was an advocate of freedom at the time he whipped the British and that after it was over he was in a peaceful frame of mind.

YOU CAN SAVE A LIFE.

A most worthy campaign being waged in this community is the collection of clothing by the Lutherans for suffering members of that denomination in Poland. According to figures at hand there are one million Lutherans in Poland at the present time. When the Germans approached Warsaw in 1915 the Russians ordered an exodus of the Lutheran Poles. One hundred and ten thousand Lutheran men were torn away from their families and sent to Siberia. Ten days later the women and children were also sent to Siberia. In each case they had only 24 hours' notice and did not have time to make provisions for the future or to preserve their property.

All through the long years of the war these people were in exile in Siberia and thousands upon thousands of families were unable to find one another. When the war ended they were permitted to return to their native land. They are there now, helpless. It is true that as far as food is concerned they will be well taken care of, for they have been able to raise crops this year. But they have not been able to procure clothing.

Thousands of women, men and children are facing the winter without sufficient clothing to keep them warm. It is for these people that the local clothing drive is being carried on. All local churches will receive donations of apparel and will make arrangements to send them to the central depot where they will be shipped to Poland as soon as possible. The need for immediate action is imperative with winter coming on.

Those who have garments they wish to donate to this worthy cause are requested to get them into the hands of the local Lutheran pastors at once.

Your donation may save some child, man or woman from death by freezing. Would you save a life?

THE FARMER NOT THE PROFITEER

The farmer is blamed too much for the present high prices of foodstuffs. Take for example the case of the city woman who was offered beans by a farmer who called at her door.

"How much do you ask?" she inquired.

"I'm selling at the rate of $8 per bushel."

"Six dollars per bushel!" exclaimed the housewife in righteous indignation. "Why, I can buy all the beans I want at the corner grocery at fifteen cents a pound."

The farmer might, had he cared, have explained that beans at fifteen cents a pound are $9 a bushel. The woman was so impressed with the difference in sound between $6 and fifteen cents, however, that she probably could not have been made to believe that the latter was fifty per cent greater than the former.

Then there is the case of the farmer who sold a load of potatoes to a grocer at $1.75 a bushel. Before he had left the premises, a woman customer came along and bought some of the potatoes at seven cents a pound. In other words, she paid at the rate of $4.20 per bushel for what had cost $1.75.

The farmer worked for months over his potato field, plowing, harrowing, planting, fighting weeds and bugs, digging, gathering, sorting, and hauling to market. For a season's effort he received $1.75 per bushel, while the retailer quickly realized, with little effort, $2.45 per bushel.

Such cases as these are fairly typical. The farmer works harder than anyone else for his money, takes great risks, and as a rule receives a lower rate of return.

FLYING HIGH

You just naturally have got to be high nowadays in order to get along in the world.

Even the fishermen are flying airplanes in Norway. And according to dispatches, they are making a fine living in the air.

Airships, once the mock of the general public, are now business helps and it won't be long before they are as popular and plentiful as lizzies.

A college professor has the idea that by using a huge airship he can approach near enough to Mars that he may signal and talk to the inhabitants there. And he has found an aviator who guarantees to take him as high as he desires to go.

Weather prophets claim that, with a good airship, they could climb high enough to tell the world what sort of weather is coming next week.

Airships are coming into their own.

CONGRATULATIONS

Miss Mary Egan and Janesville have been honored by the election of the former as president of the state librarians' association. Miss Egan has made Janesville's library an example for institutions of the state through her efficient and business-like methods in conducting its affairs. She has not been content with merely making the library a place where books are circulated but has created interest in her wares and encouraged the public to get the most out of the institution.

Janesville is fortunate in having such an efficient librarian and its citizens will rejoice in her election as head of such an important group of public servants as the librarians association.

The special meeting of the council to be held Wednesday night is for the purpose of getting the citizens' opinions concerning the policy to be followed in the future in regard to the traction company. This is an important meeting and it is the duty of every citizen who has the interest of the city as well as their own at heart to give the city officials their views on the matter. The columns of the Gazette are open to a discussion of the matter.

A California woman refused to take King Albert for a king when he stopped at her farm house for water. Considering some of our recent experiences with kings, Albert should feel complimented.

The butchers in Appleton are having a little war of their own. Hostilities have proceeded to such a stage that one meat merchant has advertised, "soup bones free of charge." Oh, for a war!

Perhaps Janesville folks do eat hearty meals at lunch time. One cannot look at our beautiful women and robust men and imagine that they are suffering from malnutrition.

An Iowa man has read the Gazette for 60 years and still comes back for more. Such an endorsement encourages a newspaper to give the best it can provide.

THE EVERLASTING NEED.

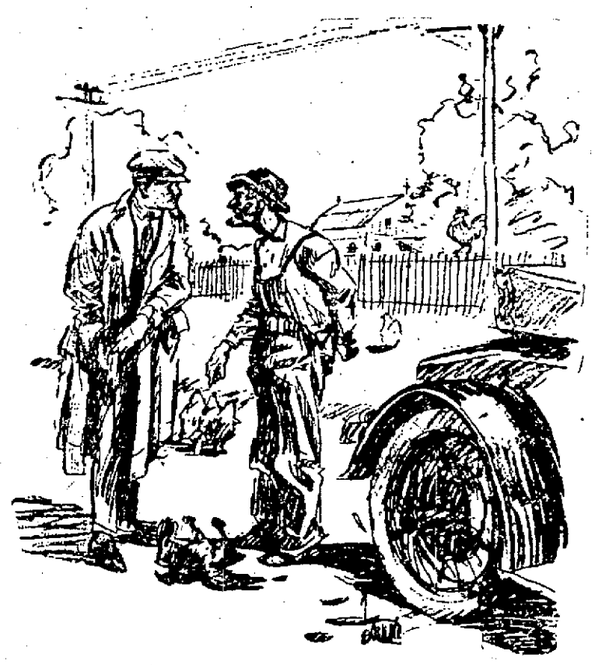

If the world were all made over and the wrongs all put to right,
If the changes men are seeking could be wrought here over night,
There would still be need for kindness and for gentle hearts and true
And for brave men who are toiling for the good that they can do.

If the last reform were fashioned into laws for men to keep,
Through the days of our existence there'd be times that we would weep;
We would need the hand of friendship when our skies with grief were gray
And our faith in God above us, as we're needing them, today.

We are building better pathways for the feet of men to tread,
They shall look on greater splendors in the years that lie ahead,
But the hand of grief shall find them, they shall feel the touch of care
And shall need good friends about them in the darkness of despair.

We can never make it over to a world that's sorrow free,
Despite all our brave endeavors, grief and care shall always be,
And when all the laws are written that the hand of men can pen,
There will still be need for kindness and for brave and helpful men.

Recreation versus Unrest

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN, Director
Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau,
Washington, D. C.

New York, Oct. 13.—A new antidote for the industrial unrest which grows daily more restless in this country is now being prepared by the war map community service. It consists of a nation-wide program of recreation for civilians, much the same as that which was carried on for soldiers and sailors during the war.

It is broadly hinted that big business will put up big money for the support of this effort to fight bolshevism with fun.

Beginning the first of November the war camp community service is going to drop the war camp and retain merely the name community service. It will then start a drive to obtain funds with which to organize community play all over the country along the lines it has organized here in New York. The idea seems to be to get everybody playing so contentedly during his spare time that he will forget all about the high cost of living and profiteering and other disagreeable problems that tend to put him in a rebellious frame of mind. There is nothing like a good old-fashioned glee club or choral society or amateur theatrical, or a pageant, or even a weekly dance, for dispelling discontent.

They Ought to Know.

At least, so argues the new community service, and it ought to know, for that was its job for over a year—keeping an army of four million men contented.

"Entertainment has always succeeded in this respect," declared Mario McGuffey manager of the entertainment bureau of the service, the other morning. "It is a staple article always to be relied upon—like soap."

Just then a couple of navy men, a lieutenant and a sailor, appeared at the door, a mandolin and a banjo clasped in their respective arms, and Mr. McGuffey rose to give them a cordial greeting and direct them to a nearby room.

"Dropped in to do a little practicing for the show we are putting on tonight at the Americanization center," he explained, returning while the sound of a banjo keeping pace with a mandolin immediately began in the other room. The stenographers and clerks in the outside office went on with their work as if they were quite used to such interruptions.

"The importance of entertainment in combatting restlessness is now so well understood," said Mr. McGuffey, "that the most prominent captains of industry are lending us their support in this forthcoming campaign. I have just returned from a conference where some disquieting facts were frankly discussed. It was more than whispered in the conference room that there was great danger; that in three or four months the country might be in a hopeless state of chaos. If something is not done. Well, the captains of industry decided to do it. They decided to contribute about a fourth of their millions to keep up the other three-fourths, this fourth to be used largely in providing amusement and recreation for the people.

Trained Leaders to Be Sent Out.

"Trained leaders are to be sent out to communities all over the country to organize recreation centers, games, amateur theatricals, and social affairs. People will not only be provided with free entertainment, but they will be trained to provide entertainment for others. This will help to supply that demand for self-expression, which is one of the most significant manifestations of this age—sometimes it is called 'the will to power.'"

The entire staff of the new community service entertainment will be made up of managers and actors, with perhaps a social worker or two for emergency cases. Such a staff has already organized between five and six thousand talented young persons here in New York to provide entertainment for a long list of institutions, as well as for soldiers and sailors. Sometimes as many as 52 shows a week are put on by the entertainment committee. It furnishes anything from a pageant to a vaudeville act to any organization that wants it.

During the summer a vaudeville performance was given every night on a roof garden donated by a society woman, to which soldiers and sailors were admitted free and civilians at the price of 25 cents. The same sort of performance has recently been given four nights a week at the Amsterdam Opera house, rechristened "The Community Playhouse," and in addition to this, traveling groups of Community Playhouse Players have been furnishing entertainment for the American Legion, battleships, hospitals, military prisons, civilian hospitals, re-education centers, public schools, churches, evening classes in Americanization and to settlement houses.

Anyone With Talent Needed.

Anyone who thinks he has any talent that would be useful in providing entertainment is invited to join the organization. It can make use of everything from a singer or dancer to basketball player and a distributor of invitations. Many professionals have volunteered for one night or one matinee a week, but the mainstay of the organization is its thousands of amateurs, some of whom develop very unusual talent.

For example, not long ago a sailor appeared at the playhouse one evening in a not altogether sober condition. Instead of reprimanding him, the hostess in charge ushered him to a seat for a view of the vaudeville performance, and later one of the theatrical scouts approached him and asked him if he would not like a part in one of the dramatic productions. The boy protested that he had never done anything of the kind, but the scout told him to come and see one of the rehearsals. The next day he appeared and sat deeply interested, watching the rehearsal of a comedy, after which he lingered and helped the scene painter arrange bits of scenery. Gradually the scout who had first spoken to him secured his history. He had been discharged from the navy and had started to look for a job, but had been rebuffed so often that he became discouraged and started hanging around cheap bar rooms. Upon being persuaded to take the part the scout had mentioned, the boy showed such remarkable talent that the bureau had no difficulty in landing him a job with a legitimate company.

The most interesting phase of the work, of course, is the developing of this exceptional talent which occasionally appears in one out of dozens of volunteers. One night several months ago, a group of several girls appeared to watch one of the choral rehearsals that was going on. When a third of the way through the director suddenly discovered that the girl who was going to sing the next solo had not shown up. This was the third rehearsal she had missed, and as the part was important her absence was a distinct handicap. The director could not refrain from unburdening his outraged feelings, whereupon one of the girls in the group of five shoved her neighbor, an embarrassed damsel of 15, forward, and said:

"Here, get her to sing it for you. She knows the whole of 'Pinafore' by heart."

She Was "Top Heavy."

The director looked at the girl, and was also embarrassed. As he confided to the manager afterwards, she appeared so awkward—"top-heavy" was the word he used—that he was sure she couldn't sing, and that she would hurt rather than aid the rehearsal. However, in the face of four enthusiastic feminine supporters, he did not have the temerity to turn the offer down. Much to his amazement, therefore, he discovered that the girl had a voice. After the first few minutes of nervousness, it developed into a clear, high soprano, which left the entire company a trifle breathless with surprise. It was absolutely untrained and unspoiled. The girl did not even know there was anything remarkable about it. But she does now, and is studying hard with a view to achieving grand opera.

In addition to its theatrical activities, the playhouse contains a fencing school, a ballet class, a boxing class and a basketball floor. The stranger entering the door of the house any evening is met by a hostess, who introduces him and asks him if he would not like to take part in some of the activities instead of merely looking on. If so, she makes an appointment for him with one of the directors or teachers next day, before whom his special talent is displayed and judged. Many do not care to do anything more conspicuous than attend the weekly dances given in the auditorium or join one of the large choruses. But whatever he does, he meets a large number of people and plays with them, and so enjoys himself.

Such Facilities Are Valuable.

Such facilities are particularly valuable here in New York where people often remain for many months and never meet anyone more friendly than a subway conductor. An English woman, speaking of this feature the other day, said that she was in this country for over a year before she met anyone socially. In London, she explained, the women talked to each other in the museum and other public places, but she attended the public library here in New York for six months without having anyone address a friendly remark to her with the exception of an elevator girl.

This loneliness, according to the experts, is one big factor in the industrial unrest, and the lack of normal, healthy pleasures is another. Get the people together and let them play, and they will cease to worry about the social order. Such is the theory of this move to make recreation general. Whether or not it stops the spread of radical and liberal opinion, it deserves support as a sincere effort to increase the joy of living.

FISHIN'.

They's folks that keep hankerin' for money,
An' some that go looney on wine,
But I don't need either to satisfy me
With this common ol' nature o' mine.
Jest give me a pole an' a big can o' worms
An' a stream where they's pick'rel or trout,
An' I'll have more durn fun than a circus
Just fishin'—day in and out.

An' the lilac with blossom is bright,

Jest give me a fishpole an' fixin's,

PUTTING THE "CAT" IN DELI-CAT-ESSEN.

Dear Roy—I was walking on one of the business streets of Flushing the other day when I observed a cat walking through a big hole in a screen door in front of a delicatessen shop. Thinking to kid the proprietor of the shop I remarked: "Say, Henry, what's the use of having screen doors up when the cats can walk through?" "Oh, dot's alright," says Henry. "I just got dem doors up to keep oud der musketeers." Was Henry kidding back, or are they that big over there?—J. L. Beers.

THE MESSENGER BOY.

Farewell to the life of the messenger boy,
I'll hit the high roadway to ease and to joy.
Why should I pound the pave
Just to scramp and to save,
And be some rich broker's mechanical toy?

Infect me and give me the traveling bug.
I'll cop out a few
And I'll seek pastures new,
And all the newspapers will publish me mug.

The Charlotte Republican says the story is told that during the period the Wheeler Bros. elephant was wrecking the garden of a West Seminary street lady, the gentle one, turning to one of the showmen, stated with some emphasis that unless the circus folk took the elephant out of her yard at once she would call a lawyer. "My dear madam," said the showmen, who caught the ridiculousness of the request, "if you know of any lawyer who can persuade the elephant to get out of your yard, for heaven's sake send him."

ASK US

The Gazette maintains an information bureau at Washington, D. C., under the direction of Frederic J. Haskin. Questions will be answered on any subject. Those desiring information, may write a letter to the Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau, Washington D. C., and enclose a stamp. The letter will be answered by the bureau.

Q. What nationality is Eammon De Valera, the president of the Irish republic? F. S.

A. He is an American. He was born in New York, the son of an Irish mother and Spanish father. He was taken to Ireland when young by his parents.

Q. What is the origin of the saying, "Letting the cat out of the bag?" D. E.

A. It is said that a countryman put a cat into a sack and sold it at market as a pig, the buyer not inspecting it before paying his money. From the discovery of this trick originated the saying, "letting the cat out of the bag."

Q. What is a shine ball, and by whom was it discovered? J. P.

A. The shine ball is thrown like a fast ball, but floats instead of curving. It was discovered by Eddie Cicotte of the Chicago American league.

Q. Can you tell how to remove tar from the neck and ears of a horse? J. J. C.

A. Rub lard thoroughly on the tar, then wash with hot water and soap. Repeat this treatment if necessary. Turpentine is sometimes applied in similar cases, but no concentrated acid should ever be put on the flesh of the horse.

Q. What will soften the shell of an egg so it can be squeezed through the neck of a small bottle without breaking? E. V. W. G.

A. This may be accomplished by the use of acetic acid or very strong vinegar.

Q. Does the government redeem paper money that has been charred in a fire? M. B. C.

A. The government redeems all torn or mutilated money if there is enough of it left to identify it.

Q. Will a dense growth of ivy kill an elm tree? J. A. C.

A. A dense growth of ivy will undoubtedly weaken the tree, if it does not kill it. The growth of the ivy should be watched carefully and some of it cut out when it gets too dense.

Q. Of what kind of wood are shingles and clothes pins made? C. P.

Shingles are usually made from cedar, while clothes pins are made almost exclusively of birch.

Q. How many colored soldiers were there in the recent world war? C. T. M.

A. There were over 400,000 negro soldiers from the United States in the late war, nearly one-half of whom went overseas.

An Extra Mile of Yarn!

COOPER'S-BENNINGTON, unlike ordinary underwear, is spring needle knit throughout. The same elasticity you've noted in cuffs and ankles of the average garment is found in every inch of a Cooper's-Bennington suit. It requires an extra mile of yarn to secure this "stretch that springs back" but you'll never find Cooper's-Bennington underwear getting out of shape and baggy. And the extra mile of yarn also gives an extra year of wear.

COOPER'S BENNINGTON'S

Spring Needle Underwear

Let us show you our full line of Cooper's-Bennington garments. The fabric speaks for itself. Stretch it and see it resume its original shape. Cooper's-Bennington has, also, shaped legs, butted seams instead of overlap or welted seams; double insert shoulder strap, allowing greater stretch when sitting; no gap, one button-crotch seat.

Just decide you are going to have the best underwear made and we'll supply it—in styles and at prices to suit you.

DEAN MATTHEWS IS SPEAKER AT BAPTIST 75TH ANNIVERSARY

An impressive sermon was preached by Dean Shailer Matthews of the Chicago University Divinity school yesterday morning at the 75th anniversary celebration of the Baptist church.

He felt a spirit of optimism in regard to the future. He said "That the experience of the past four years has taught us that there is a solidarity of purpose in our nation which is capable of great things despite the frivolity of moving picture shows and of jazz bands."

He predicted greater things during the next 75 years, than those which had happened in the past. He said that those wonderful forces which are working among the people at this time, are those with which christian men and women could co-operate. He emphasized the thought that while the church did not interfere with political or educational matters, yet it was educating the young men and women who should be at the head of things in the days to come.

Union Meeting in Evening

In the evening a union meeting was held in the Baptist church with a large audience in attendance. Rev. F. F. Lewis made the opening prayer. Father Henry Willman read the scripture lesson. In the absence from the city of J. A. Steiner, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., Alexander E. Matheson brought to the Baptists the greetings from the Y. M. C. A. Rev. J. A. Melrose in voicing the greetings from the churches to the Baptist people, emphasized the thought that christianity must take the challenge of the times seriously and get together in a spirit of cordiality and good will.

Rev. Warren Behan gave a few words of greeting from the Baptist church of Wisconsin at large when he paid a tribute to the local church and its influence on the many young lives with which it had come in contact, in its 75 years of service in the community.

Dean Matthews Speaks

Dean Shailer Matthews spoke again in the evening, taking as his subject the story of Nehemiah as related in the Bible. In simple forceful language he portrayed Nehemiah as a generous man who left his home to go down and put heart into his discouraged people, who were trying to rebuild their temple. They had labor troubles, and troubles with profiteers, and then they wanted to quit and have a peace conference with their enemies, but throughout this trying time Nehemiah managed to keep them steadily on the job. Then came a message of cowardly piety to Nehemiah which suggested to him, that he go into the temple, and shutting out all these vexing questions hold communion with God. Then it was that Nehemiah spoke the words which were made the basis of the discourse. "Why is it that such a man as I should go into the temple, and shut the door? I will not do it." Another thought which he emphasized was that the church should teach people, to treat mankind as "folks," not as human chattels, and it should ever stand for the superiority of persons before that of any economic system. An enlarged choir furnished appropriate music for both occasions under the direction of Mrs. Alice Thomas.

BUYERS FROM ALL PARTS OF COUNTRY SEEK CATTLE HERE

To what extent Rock county is becoming recognized as the center for pure bred cattle and swine of all breeds is evidenced from the large number of inquiries being received every week by County Agent R. T. Glassco. Requests come from all parts of the middle west leading Mr. Glassco to the belief that farmers should devote more attention to the pure bred stock industry.

For the purpose of buying a carload of pure bred Holsteins and another carload of pure bred Jerseys, County Agent F. L. Moore and Fred Ashley, stock breeder, both of Salem, Ark., made a tour of Rock county today. They hoped to collect enough cattle for the two carloads today.

A. H. Aase, Elk Point, S. D., is in the county this week seeking to purchase Brown Swiss cattle. He has already purchased several head of R. A. Inman.

Other buyers are expected to arrive this week and next for the purpose of making up carload shipments.

Three additional requests for cattle were received in the mail by Mr. Glassco this morning. One was from Libertyville, Ill., for a carload of pure bred Holstein heifers; another from Fringhar, Ia., for a shipment of Shorthorns; while the third was from Faribault, Minn., for a carload of Holsteins.

Mr. Glassco asks that breeders who have stock of any kind for sale notify him listing the number of head so that when buyers come to the city they may be immediately directed to the places where they can fill their wants. The county agent may be notified at the court house any time during the day.

MARQUETTE FORCES BADGERS TO SHOW THEIR BEST TO WIN

Wisconsin's 13 to 0 victory over Marquette at Madison Saturday afternoon does not seem to presage a successful season for the Badgers when they buck up against Illinois, Chicago, Ohio State and some of the other teams in the Big Ten that have shown strength. The defeat was a heartbreaking one to Coach Ryan's Catholics who outplayed the varsity three-fourths of the game. Marquette should have won, or at least held Wisconsin to a no score tie according to local fans who witnesses the game.

Chicago showed speed in its 123 to 0 victory over the Great Lakes eleven while Ohio State showed itself to be a championship contender by rolling up 48 points against Cincinnati. Northwestern's 20 to 0 win over De Pauw was less than Purple rooters expected but Coach Bachman's eleven showed signs of future greatness.

In the only conference game of the day, Illinois defeated Purdue, 14 to 7. The game was played on a soggy field. Zuppke's machine looks as strong as usual. Minnesota played a loose game against Nebraska and the game ended a tie, 6 all. Nebraska was beaten by Iowa 18 to 0 the week before.

The defeat of the Army by Syracuse, 7 to 3, and Pittsburgh's 26 to 0 victory over West Virginia, were the surprises of the day in the east. Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Washington and Jefferson and the Navy, all won their games against smaller elevens with comparative ease.

FORGET "MATH" AT BANK.

Philadelphia.—"Students are notoriously poor bookkeepers and very often overdraw their accounts," says Alfred W. Wright, assistant cashier of the Centennial National Bank here, which many of the students patronize. "These freshmen youngsters especially have to be warned that their accounts are not desirable should they fall below a certain amount."

JOE BOYER WINS IN OHIO SWEEPSTAKES

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 13.—Joe Boyer won the world series automobile sweepstake race of 250 miles at the Cincinnati speedway Sunday afternoon with an average time of 101.60 miles per hour. Art Klein finished second, and Kurt Mitke was third, Dave Lewis, fourth; D. Hickey, fifth, and Tom Alley, sixth.

Boyer got off to a good start, practically led his field all the way and finished an easy winner. From the drop of the flag to the end he never entered the pit on account of trouble. Klein made a fine drive, but was unable to overtake Boyer.

Several postponements and threatening weather resulted in a small attendance. Personages in the automobile world from all sections of the country were present. A slippery track threatened trouble in the first few laps, but a brisk wind and sunshine quickly dried the big oval and the race was unmarred by even a minor accident.

ST. PAUL DEFEATS VERNON IN FIFTH

Los Angeles, Oct. 13.—St. Paul won from Vernon on Sunday, 2 to 1. The series between the pennant winners of the Pacific Coast baseball league and the American association stands 3 to 2 in favor of the Tigers.

Sunday's game, the second won by St. Paul, also was the second victory for Pitcher Griner. In sixteen of the eighteen innings he pitched here he has not allowed Vernon an earned run.

St. Paul won the game in the sixth, when two runs were scored on four hits.

The contest was featured by several tilts between the visiting players and Umpire Toman, who was behind the plate. Toman's chest guard was torn from him and he was struck several times in an argument in the fifth inning.

The next game in the series for the western minor league championship will be played tomorrow.

Fred Eddy, Beloit, driving an Oakland, won the twenty-five mile auto race in 26:48. Ralph Joslyn of Rockford, with a Ford, was second.

Dr. Fred Kostlevy, Beloit dentist, riding as a mechanician, was seriously injured in a practice spin when Nicholas Frendahl, also of Beloit, who was driving, lost control of his car and it crushed through the infield fence on turning out of a turn.

COME OVER TO OUR HOUSE

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a single fellow of an age that love comes never to be forgotten. I have met and flirted with many women and girls, but I have met only one that I could love and cherish as my wife and she is a married woman with a family.

I feel as though I cannot live without her. She knows of my love for her and says she loves me, but she feels she must be true to all her marriage vows, although her husband has treated her shamefully and neglected her in every way a man can.

She works and clothes herself and children and he does not provide very well for her. She says she does not care for him and shows it in her actions, but is afraid to leave him on account of talk. It seems as if I cannot see her work so hard. She is an honorable and hard-working woman.

I have gone away and stayed two years and tried to forget her, but cannot. She does not encourage me to love her, but I cannot help it. She says when her children are old enough to care for themselves she will free herself.

I would tell him as soon as you that I love her more than life and would take her if given half a chance. I would go away again if I could stay, but I cannot stay away from her. Do you think I am doing the right thing by staying close to her although I never can ask her to to leave her family? I would take them, but she says their father is the one to do his duty caring for them.

She says she would be better off dead than to live with one and love another.

I don't want sympathy, but advice.

HOPELESS.

It is no wonder you love the woman. So few people have the character to do the right thing in spite of their inclinations. It is splendid of her to see that her husband meets his obligations to his children. She would weaken him and cheat them by taking them to you.

I think you should go away again, keeping her informed of your address, with the understanding that if she ever needs you she can call upon you.

It is very sad that you and the woman you love cannot marry, but since you cannot you should bear your lot hopefully, knowing that you will gain more in the end by doing the right thing than by acting selfishly.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: If you had been going with a fellow whom you now thought to be a slacker in the war, what would you do? He denies it, but refuses to give an adequate explanation for this thing which has come up between us. X. Y. Z.

If I felt that a man was a slacker in the war I would expect him to prove the same in every day life. Instead of meeting his obligations and bearing responsibilities, he would shift his burden to someone else.

H. T. M.: You will have to go to a new locality, where you can by right living make new and desirable friends.

When your husband tells you not to care because he doesn't, you should be very grateful for his love and not expect him to beat up every one who condemns your former conduct. It would be useless for him to try to force people to stop talking. Right living and a beautiful character will force them to change their opinion of you. Do not let bitterness ruin your life, if Your husband has taken you in spite of everything and you should prove to the world that you are worthy of him. To make him happy should mean more than anything else to you.

She Married an Average Man

By ZOE BECKLEY.

I have been restless today; I don't know why. I try to be absolutely honest in my diary, to analyze my thoughts and feelings, to clarify my problems by looking at them squarely on paper. And so I write it down mercilessly that I believe Eric Sands is haunting me just a little.

Jim has said that a woman never really lets go her hold on a man who has once loved her. "Loved" is too strong a word in this case. Yet it sets me thinking.

A woman feeds on tenderness. When she is the recipient of it she often does not realize it is the well-spring of her life. When she lacks it, she does not always know what makes her life go drab and empty. Or if she knows she hides the truth from others and from herself—when she can.

Even when a woman is old she cherishes her romances, idealizes her former lovers, lives again in her mind her youthful triumphs and match-makes for her grandchildren.

Now, Jim is what the world calls "a good husband." He has clean habits, makes a comfortable livelihood and quite often brings me flowers. Yet I never have a sense of comradeship with Jim.

He never says at the end of the day: "Well, Chick, what news? Tell me something. "Who've you seen? What have you done with yourself?"

When I ask him about his office affairs he shuts up like a clam. I would give anything on earth to have Jim come home some night and say: "I'm worried to death about that deal with Gorham. Wonder how I'm going to meet expenses on his contract?"

Now, Eric Sands is different. I mean, he would be so different, I think. Eric was a journalist. When I knew him in England he earned two pounds a week. His boots were always needing soles, but he never failed to have a new book in his pocket.

He couldn't afford theater tickets, but he knew every walk within 20 miles of London and every romantic wayside tearoom and every picture gallery and quaint street and fascinating byway.

One afternoon I remember he came to my hotel radiant and bareheaded—he had forgotten his hat in the excitement—to tell me he had made 12 shillings extra on an article I had inspired him to do. We grabbed hands and executed a jig right there in that staid British hotel parlor.

Then we went to the Cheshire Cheese, where Johnson and Boswell used to hang out, and had a marvelous dinner which we took turns ordering. He'd select, one dish and I the next. Oh, it was wonderful fun.

And later a real English fog came up. We had a terrible time groping our way through the greasy streets to my little inn. But we laughed and thrilled over it.

Jim wouldn't see anything beautiful in all this. If Jim went to London he would stop at the Hotel Ritz, dine at Claridge's and motor out to Brighton for the week end. Yet Jim is a splendid man. He is kind and affectionate, good to look at, fine to depend on, and—I love him.

What more do I want?

I don't know. Nothing, I guess. I've got the hypoes, that's all.

I'll go for a long, fast walk and send off that letter and box to Eric Sands. He won't get it for Christmas, poor old chap. But a wounded soldier in a foreign hospital won't mind a little thing like that.

CANNING AND PRESERVING.

Peach Jam—Put through the chopper 24 peaches (use whole fruit), six oranges (rind and juice), two lemons (take one seed). Add the juice of two more lemons. Put a cup of white sugar to one cup of pulp. Boil 40 minutes. Makes about 20 glasses.

Grape Marmalade (this recipe will make 12 glasses)—Five pounds grapes, five pounds medium-sized sour apples, two medium-sized oranges, four pounds sugar (granulated).

Wash the grapes, separate the skins from pulp. Wash and slice apples, put with the grape pulp. Run through sieve and mix with skins.

Now peel oranges, remove seeds and cut in small pieces. Add the sugar mix well and after starts to boil 30 minutes. Remove from fire, fill glasses which have been sterilized. Let stand until cold and cover with melted paraffin.

Sour Dutch Beans—Use young, tender, yellow butter beans. Wash them well and stem them. Split them lengthwise and parboil in salted water. Now spread out on table to cool.

Pack a half bushel into a two-gallon crock; first a layer of beans then a scant handful of salt. Two much salt won't let them get sour. If they don't get sour they are no good.

When you have your crock full put a clean cloth over and a plate and weight. If their own juice does not cover them you must add water to cover. Be sure to keep them covered with juice. Watch them and keep clean by washing cloth, plate and stone.

Cook with fresh pork like sauerkraut.

Tomato Cream—This can be used in place of chili sauce or catsup.

Grind fine 12 tomatoes, 12 onions and 12 apples. Add one quart vinegar, one pound sugar, one cup mustard, one and one-half tablespoons salt, one-half tablespoon red pepper (ground), one teaspoon celery seed. Mix all together and cook say about two and one-half hours.

A GOOD SOUP.

Clear Tomato Noodle Soup—Place one and one-half cups of stewed tomatoes, two onions minced fine, one carrot grated, one faggot of soup herbs, two cups of water in a saucepan and bring to a boil. Cook slowly for 15 minutes and then rub through a fine sieve. Season to taste and add one-half package of noodles and cook for 10 minutes. Serve.

SATIN COMBINES WITH TRICOTINE IN SMART FROCK

By ELOISE.

Those women who think that a frock made of combined material smacks too much of war economy and made-over-from-last-year looks will change their opinions perhaps when they see this frock and know that it is a Lady Duff Gordon model. It can not be denied that this is a smart and attractive frock and that it is none the less fashionable because it is made of black satin and navy tricotine combined.

The combination of satin and tricotine is always a happy one, for it makes a practical as well as a modish frock. Here the tricotine is used in the bib tunic style. It hangs straight until it reaches the hips and then it is plaited to form the skirt. The plaiting at the hips gives the new long-waisted effect, which is not always becoming, but the silk cord and tassel at the natural waistline makes it possible for almost any figure to wear it. The flat embroidery at the hips is a neat design done in black silk. The new neckline is also smart with its U-effect filled in with satin.

This frock was designed for street or informal wear of any kind and is one of those modes which became popular during the war because they could be worn at any hour of the day. It is the type of frock which the woman of curves can wear as well as the tall, slim girl.

HAD TO SHRINK ADENOIDS

A little patient 11 years old had to come under my care at fairly satisfactory intervals, first with the whooping cough, then the measles, then—well, I made several bad guesses, I called these attacks "acute acid intoxication," "intestinal indigestion," and so on. The little one had me guessing, and I had her parents guessing. Then we removed her appendix. Then she began having sort throats. Then frank attacks of tonsilitis. Then a more or less constant coryza or running at the nose. By and by it became evident that she was a mouth breather. One day she developed an earache, followed in several hours by a discharge from the ear, which cleared up in two weeks.

The child had apparently enlarged tonsils. I did not know whether she had adenoids too, because I feared to alienate her affection by thrusting my finger into her pharynx to find out, and there was no other way I could find out—although I might have made a guess about it as doctors sometimes do. However, I dodged the question neatly and distracted the parents' attention from the possible adenoids to the impossible tonsils. The parents hated having any operation. Was there any other course? I didn't know for sure. But I, brazened out that too. In practice one learns to accommodate oneself to circumstances. I offered to try my best to stave off that operation. I would see what could be done in the way of shrinking the tonsils by direct local applications. (Between you and me I knew nothing could be done, but I thought perhaps the local application might shrink the hypothetical adenoids. Remember, the nasal obstruction was a prominent feature of the case). Well, the little one and I became great friends. She was a good soldier and we got on fine. She never whimpered when I swabbed the tonsils nor made any objection when I swabbed the roof of the pharynx where I suspected adenoids were.

After several weeks I felt that we had the tonsils well in hand. The two of them would just about make a handful. I didn't wax enthusiastic about the results of the treatment, however. My comments to the parents were certainly conservative now. That's one thing a doctor must learn. He must always state things in a conservative way. Then every body will be satisfied. If you can't be so conservative before treatment, then make up your optimism by spreading the pessimism on thick after the treatment is completed. That's the way I did in this case, and it pleased everybody. I told the parents I had the tonsils pretty well in hand, but somehow they did not respond any more, and perhaps we had better have them out.

We had them out. The nose and throat man said—but surgeons always talk this way—they were about the largest tonsils he had ever removed from a child. Then he went after the adenoids, and say, I had never seen so large an adenoid body—and we doctors never speak extravagantly. No, you can't shrink adenoids.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

An Eighteen Year Old Girl.

How much should an eighteen year old girl five feet and three inches tall weigh? (E. W. C.)

ANSWER—120 pounds is the normal average. Any weight up to 132 pounds is favorable and becoming to a girl that age. Any weight below 120 signifies that she must get to bed earlier nights. She needs sleep and exercise.

Does Epilepsy Begin After Forty?

Does epilepsy ever manifest itself for the first time as late in life as fifty-four years? Can Bright's disease cause fits resembling epileptic attacks? (R. L. J.)

ANSWER—Epilepsy manifesting itself for the first time after the age of thirty-five is questionable. Usually such seizures are due to some definite organic condition of recent origin, such as brain abscess, brain tumor, uremia (from Bright's disease).

CRAZE FOR VALUABLES GRIPS WOMEN OF GREAT BRITAIN

London.—Instead of wearing precious stones and gold and silver ornaments, the women of Great Britain have developed a craze for baubles. The smartest women are wearing weird necklaces which apparently could appeal only to a primitive savage. The ropes and necklaces are of crystals, glass beads, shells, satin woods, Hindu nuts and perfumed clay.

The antique shops are reaping a rich harvest with ancient necklaces, many of which are made of cut lumps of green jade and weigh a pound or more. Many necklaces are being imported from India, Burma and Tibet to meet the great demand. No sort of color scheme seems to prevail, but greens and yellow predominate with odd "clash-color" effects.

DAIRY IN PARK.

Dublin.—In view of the scarcity of milk and the consequent undernourishment of babies and children in Dublin, the Irish Board of Works is being urged to permit dairy farming in Phoenix Park, here.

London.—A milkman, advertising for two unfurnished rooms in a local daily newspaper, offers to supply milk free to the landlady every day during tenancy.

BE SURE YOU GET THE BOTTLE

Millions use Jiffy-Jell desserts to get the real-fruit flavors. But sometimes women get the wrong dessert and find the bottles lacking.

Be careful. Jiffy-Jell is the only dessert with these fruit-juice essences in glass.

The flavor is made by crushing fruit. The juice is then condensed. It comes to you in liquid form, in vials—a bottle in each package.

Jiffy-Jell is a real-fruit dainty. It brings you the delights and the healthfulness of fruit. And people need fruit daily.

There are other names which sound like Jiffy-Jell, but they lack these bottled flavors. Be careful of the package and you'll not be disappointed.

CHAPTER VIII

Upon the return of Irene Hardy to the East it had slowly become apparent to her mother than things were not as they once had been. It seemed as though she had left part of her nature behind—had outgrown it, perhaps—and had created about herself an atmosphere of reserve foreign to her earlier life. It seemed as though the loneliness of the great plains had settled upon her.

"Whatever has come over Irene?" said Mrs. Hardy to the doctor one evening. "She hasn't been the same since she came home. I should not have let her go west alone."

The doctor looked up mildly from his paper. It was the custom of the doctor to look up mildly when Mrs. Hardy made a statement demanding some form of recognition. From the wide initiation into domestic affairs which his profession had given him Doctor Hardy had long since entirely ceased to look for the absolute in woman. He had never looked for it in man. He realized that in Mrs. Hardy he did not possess a perfect mate, but he was equally convinced that in no other woman would he have found a perfect mate, and he accepted his lot with the philosophy of his sixty years. So instead of reminding his wife that Irene had not been alone when she went west he remarked very mildly that the girl was growing older.

Mrs. Hardy found in his remark occasion to lay down the book she had been holding and to sit upright in a rigidity of intense disapproval. Doctor Hardy was aware that this was entirely a theatrical attitude, assumed for the purpose of imposing upon him a proper humility. He had experienced it many times.

"Doctor Hardy," said his wife after the lapse of an appropriate period, "do you consider that on intelligent remark."

"It has the advantage of truthfulness," returned the doctor complacently. "It is susceptible of demonstration."

"I should think this is a matter of sufficient interest to the family to be discussed seriously," retorted Mrs. Hardy, who had an unfortunate habit of becoming exasperated by her husband's good humor. "Irene is our only child, and before your very eyes you see her—you see her— Do you know, I begin—I really begin to suspect that she is in love."

It was Doctor Hardy's turn to sit upright. "Nonsense!" he said. "Why should she be in love?" It is the unfortunate limitation of the philosopher that he so often leaves irrational behavior out of the reckoning. "She is only a child."

"She will be eighteen presently. And why shouldn't she be in love? And the question is—who? That is for you to answer. Who did she meet?"

"She met no one with me. My accident left me to enjoy my holiday as best I could at a ranch deep in the foothills, and Reenie stayed with me there. There was one one else—"

"No one? No ranchmen, cowboys—cow punchers—I think I have heard"—with nice disdain.

"No. Only young Elden—"

"Only? Who is this young Elden?"

"But he is just a boy. Just the son of the old rancher of whom I have told you."

"Exactly. And Irene is just a girl, Doctor Hardy, you are all very well with your fevers and your chills, but you can't diagnose a love case worth a cent. What about this young Elden? Did Irene see much of him?"

The doctor spread his hands. "Do you realize that there were four of us at the ranch—four only, and no one else for miles? How could she help seeing him?"

"And you permitted it?"

"I was on my back with a broken leg. We were guests at their home. They were good Samaritans to us. I couldn't chaperon her. And besides, they don't do things that way in that country. You don't understand. It's altogether different."

"Andrew," said Mrs. Hardy, leaning forward, and the word was ominous, for she used his Christian name only in moments of crisis, "was Irene ever with this young man—alone?"

The doctor arose to his feet and trod heavily upon the rich carpetings. "I told you you don't understand," he protested. "The West is not the East. Everything is different—"

"I suppose human nature is different," she interrupted meaningly. Then her head fell upon the table and her hands went up about her hair. It had been brown hair once but was now thinned with gray. "Oh, Andrey," she wept, "we are ruined! That we should ever have come to this!"

It was now Doctor Hardy's turn to be exasperated. There was one thing his philosophy could not endure. That was a person who was not and who would not be philosophical. Mrs. Hardy was not and would not be philosophical.

"This is all nonsense!" said the doctor, impatiently. "There is nothing to it, anyway. The girl had to have some company. What if they did ride together? What—"

"They rode together? Alone?"

"They had their horses along," said the doctor, whose impatience had made way for sarcasm.

"You are mocking me. In this hour of shame you are making jests. Call Irene."

The girl was summoned. Her fine face had lost some of its brownness and the eyes seemed deeper and slower, but she was still a vision of grace and beauty as she stood in response to their call, framed in the curtains of an archway. Her quick sense caught the tense atmosphere, and she came forward with parted lips and extended fingers.

"Yes?" she said. "What is wrong? Can I help?"

"Your father has confessed," said Mrs. Hardy, trying hard to speak with judicial calm. "Now tell us about this cow puncher. Let us know the worst."

Irene's eyes flew from her mother to her father's face, and there they caught something that restored their calm.

"There was no worst," she said with a ripple of laughter, "but there was a good deal of best. Shall I tell you the best?"

"Irene," said her mother severely, "did you permit that young man to make love to you?"

"I did not give him permission. If that answers you, because he didn't ask it."

Mrs. Hardy had risen. "Andrew, did you hear that? She confesses. It's dreadful! Horrible! What will everybody say?"

TRY FLAP-JACKS.

London. — Two substitutes for bread, that is to say bakers' bread made from yeast, are suggested by one who has lived for many years on the Canadian prairie.

The first is "bannock," or baking powder bread. Baking powder is used instead of wheat, and the dough should not be made as solid as with the yeast bread. It requires no kneading and one one "rising."

"Flap-jacks," the other substitute suggested, are made similarly to English pancakes, but a good deal thicker and heavier, and cooked in the same manner. In both cases flour, water, baking powder and salt are the only ingredients required. These substitutes are said to be quite as nutritious as bakers' bread, although not quite so palatable.

Dinner Stories

Two Scotch miners went on a fishing expedition. But they were novices at the game. "Hoo are ye gettin' on, Jock?" asked one. "Och, simply rotten!" was the reply. "I don't believe my bloomin' worm's trying."

In one of the southern training camps a profane and perspiring infantry sergeant was doing his best to pound into the heads of a squad of exceedingly raw rookies the rudiments of military science.

When the sergeant gave an order each willing recruit of the squad made a commendable effort to execute it, but every little rookie had a movement of his own with highly unsatisfactory results.

"As you were!" bawled the sergeant.

At this point the proceedings were interrupted by a recruit from Boston who before enlisting had been a Harvard student.

"Beg pawdon, sawgeant," said he, "but pawdon, sawgeant," said he, say, 'You will restoah the status quo ante?'"

"This is the best burglar alarm made. The burglar no sooner enters the house than it alarms the residents," said the hardware dealer to the new neighbor.

"Haven't you got one that will alarm the burglar?"

Some medical fiend claims to have discovered that bee stings are a great cure for rheumatism. Pity the hesitating rheumatic patient, timorously muttering: "To 'bee' or not to 'bee'—that is the question!"

He claims an investigation revealed that Joseph Duvall, at one time a resident of Kewaunee but now deceased and who George Duvall represents, removed the tombstone from the grave of his mother and buried a member of the Duvall family over her body about 20 years ago.

JANES OUT-HIT BY ALBANY BUT WIN 4-3 IN FINAL GAME

The Lawrence Lunch Janes defeated Albany, 4 to 3, at the fair grounds yesterday afternoon, thus finishing in glorious style the 1919 baseball season in Janesville. It was the third drubbing of the year handed to the cocky Albanians by the home club.

The game yesterday was one of the most extraordinary frays seen on the home lot this season. It was extraordinary for a hundred and one reasons the leading ones being the mouth fights, raw decisions, boots, and general bad baseball, displayed. There was more bad baseball packed in those nine innings than there has been in any game here this year. Each team was guilty of 6 errors. The invaders' boots came at crucial moments while the Janes' were kept well scattered. The villagers showed poor judgment all the way through, and to make matters worse for them they were handed the raw end of several bad decisions. All the rooters had a whale of a time—it was one offthe best comedies ever seen for the small fee of 45 coppers.

Despite the fact that luck and ability were both against them, the Albanians fought hard and made it an even game the whole route, many times threatening to walk off with the longer end of the score. The game was tie from the third inning up to the ninth, when with two down, Clarke of the Janes drove out a pretty single to center bringing Dolan home with the tally that gave the Janes their final victory.

Eldred Has Good Day

"Rube" Eldred had a good day on the mound for the Janes and had he been given any kind of support in the pinches he might have scored a shut-out victory. His curve-ball was breaking so fast yesterday that he fanned 9 of his home-town friends, and walked but 2. Although he was touched for 9 safe blows, 5 more than the Janes got, he kept them so well scattered that he traveled the distance with comparative ease, and was going strong at the finish. He displayed his best form in the fifth stanza, when with second and third bases occupied and only one down, he tightened and fanned the next two who faced him.

Albany had an important battery on duty in an effort to down the Janes. Heidemann and Hershfield of the Beloit Fairy Apprentices formed the duo and had they been backed up with ordinary support the score might have been different. Heidemann pitched a winning game, allowing only 4 safeties and striking out 5 Janes, but frequent boots and bonehead plays behind him proved his undoing.

Eldred had one bad inning—the first—when two singles, a long fly that went for a double, an error, and a walk accounted for two Albany runs. After that, he was almost invincible.

Together with the big Rube, two members of the city's famous junior nine, the All-Stars, were stars of the game. "Bevo" Bick and Art Marko were the two neophytes pushed into the game when a couple of Janes were alleged to have missed their trains. Both fielded their positions perfectly, Marko driving in the first run with a neat single to right to make his performance more remarkable. Bick hit the apple every time reaching first three times on a fielder's choice and once on an error.

Albany Scores First

Albany got away to an early start. Andrews juggled Broughton's tap in the first round and then threw wild to first allowing him to reach the keystone sack. Viney, who had been pressed into Albany's service, singled over Bick's head and stole second.

With two men on, Andrews threw out Croake at first, and things began to look better but Wyckoff, next up, drove a long fly to right which was lost in the sun going for two bases, Broughton and Viney scoring. Harry Croake started to right but Marko's peg caught Wyckoff at the plate. Heidemann walked and Bick threw Loeffel out at first, ending the inning.

The only other run for Albany was registered in the eighth, tying the score 3 all. Wyckoff beat out a bunt and got as far as third when Silverthorn's throw to catch him at second went into centerfield. Eldred showed speed and whiffed the next two but Andrews made a bad throw of Loeffel's roller allowing Wyckoff to score. Fleming was touched off by Silverthorne ending the rally.

The Janes' first tally was made in the second stanza when Dolan walked, was sacrificed to second by Clarke, and scored on Marko's single. The next one came in the third. Eldred singled but was forced at second by Owen. Broughton's error allowed Owen to reach third and Bick first. Owen scored on Andrew's roller. Dolan walked again but the inning came to an abrupt end when Tommy Croake caught Kasmarck's liner for a double-play, unassisted.

Fight In Seventh

Although a chance came each inning, the Janes did not score again until the seventh when Eldred beat out a bunt, was sacrificed to second by Owen, reached third when Broughton failed to tag him after Croake had made a perfect throw of Bick's grounder. The big fight started here. Umpire Blake ruled Eldred out but changed his decision when Umpire Doran called him safe. The crowd hooted and howled and had a general good time for five minutes. When hostilities ceased Eldred was perched safely on third from where he scored on Broughton's muff of Andrews' drive.

With the score a tie in the last of the ninth Broughton threw wild to first and Bick was safe. Andrews popped to Croake. The pitcher threw wild to first and Dolan was safe. Bick stopping at third. Kasmarck drove to ff. Croake who nipped Bick at the rubber. With an extra inning in sight, Clarke broke up the game by a single to centerfield, scoring Dolan.

HIGH SCHOOL BEATEN BY DELAVAN, 12-0, IN FIRST GRID FRAY

Frequent fumbles on the part of the local high school football eleven resulted in a 12 to 0 victory for Delavan high school in the opening game of the season at the fair grounds Saturday afternoon, played before a small but enthusiastic crowd of rooters. Fleming, the visitors' crack quarterback, scored both touchdowns, one in the second quarter and the other in the third. Both tries at goal went wide.

After playing the invaders off their feet in the opening quarter, the blue and white combination came back and gave the game away in the next two quarters. A fumble on Janesville's own 10-yard line and failure of the line to hold on a punt from the shadows of the local goal posts spelled defeat, the visitors taking advantage of every break of the game.

In justice to the blue and white squad it must be said that there was not a bit of disgrace in the defeat. The game developed one outstanding feature—a gamer lot of men never represented the local high school on the gridiron. Although the majority of them are as green as the greenest material ever seen, they showed that they were game to the core, full of fight, and anything but quitters. Not a streak of yellow showed in any man who wore Janesville togs.

With such a lot of men to work with, Coach Lewis may feel anything but discouraged. He has a bunch of men there who will work for him, men who want to improve and develop into a winning combination. Although the frequent fumbles in Saturday's contest were somewhat discouraging they are to be expected in an opening game.

Black Is Star

A small but stocky full-back bearing the name of Lovall Black was the individual star for the blue and white eleven Saturday. A tower of strength both on offensive and defensive he proved to be the mainstay of the team. A tackle on the 1918 team, he has shown himself worthy of a permanent berth in the backfield of this year's outfit. He is one of those hard driving and smashing backs of the Dalton type, picks his holes well, and hits the line low at top speed. He was good for gains every time he carried the ball in the Delavan game. On the defensive he was equally strong many times breaking through to set the Lake city bunch back for a five-yard loss. He showed two faults Saturday. He is slow on running interference and fumbles frequently. Both of these faults however, can be overcome so that within the next few weeks he ought to be one of the greatest backs turned out by the high school in the last five years.

Capt. Powers at right half played a great game and, with Black, shared the honors for being the most consistent ground gainer. He carries the ball well, is fast on his feet, and uses the straight arm to advantage. Hall, at quarterback, showed poor judgment in not allowing him to carry the ball more often, especially around the end. Powers bore the brunt of the attack on the right side of the line when on the defensive, making several spectacular tackles for losses and saving a touchdown on one occasion. He is a deadly tackler and is always sure of his man.

Other Backs Fumble.

Tunstead, playing his first game at the other halfback position, seemed lost at times but showed signs of developing into a reliable man for the back-field. He carried the ball for several good gains but fumbled frequently. He, too, was slow on running interference and in breaking it when on the defensive. Dobson, who relieved him in the second half showed up well. He carried the ball well on long end runs and could have been used for gains more frequently than he was. He showed a need of tackling practice.

At quarterback, Hall, a veteran of the 1917 team, showed fight and a good-sized amount of ability but seemed faulty in directing the team at times. When it is taken into consideration that it was his first attempt at running a team he played a good game all the way through. The spread formation, long end runs, together with forward passes could probably been used to greater advantage than they were, with an elimination of quarterback plunges in midfield.

In the line, Sullivan at left end, and Garvin at center shone. The line, as a whole, put up a great game but failed at the crucial moments. Linemen showed what they could do if they fought hard, when they held for downs on their own 3-yard line once. Kober and Kinney at guards with "Big Jo" at center proved to be a stonewall on defense. Scanlon, Morrick and Gridley, at tackles were also strong on defense, each getting a good share of tackles, but on the offense they failed to present a driving attack and many times let their opponents get through. Sullivan at left end is a sure tackler and is sure of a permanent job. Hager at the other end and Pallett, who relieved him in the fourth quarter, both played hard but showed a need for more practice in scrimmage. Townsend showed gameness during the brief time he was in the game at left end.

Monroe Here Next.

For Delavan, Fleming, Swidler, Keefe and Murphy were stars. Swidler, a tackle, carried the ball for gains on fake plays several times. Brooks at full-back also showed strong.

Coach Lewis has a stiff program of work outlined for his proteges this week. Every man came out of the fray Saturday without injury and was ready to don the moleskins for the first workout of the week at the Fourth ward park this afternoon. They are far from being discouraged over Saturday's defeat and hope to work themselves into an unbeatable combination for the Monroe high school game here next Saturday.

Manager Zimmerman promises to have the field lined before that game. Play was slowed up considerably Saturday because of the field not being properly lined.
